A little something for all those Conway and Steckler fans out there. I found an old cassette tape of mine (yes a cassette tape) with a segment from their KLSX show from sometime in 1997.

In this segment: A 33 year old Tim is in a bit of trouble when he can't find his rent receipts--he paid in cash. THE Tim Conway calls in to give his son some "support". Tim keeps his personal belongings in paper bags from Trader Joe's in which people often mistake for trash.

This is, in a way, my tribute to them. Great team. Great show. A total inspiration to me. Sorry for the tape dropouts. This is all I have of their classic show. Enjoy.
