After getting into relationships in Podcast #2, everyone's response was basically the same: whatever I said, they could relate to and I heard alot of "oh, that's so true!" So from what I can gather is that most everyone's relationship habits and experiences are all generally the same. Here's an article that I think both guys and girls should check out.

Okay, so what if it's written for girls--guys you'll want to read this to understand where girls are coming from (and maybe work on some moves and defensive plans). Guys: I think you'lll be more surprised by the article because you'll probably see that you feel the same they do, more than you think. Girls: Go for it--tell them how you feel.

So it all comes down to what I said: Communication. Communicate with eachother, stop being so narcissistic, express your feelings. Verbalize. Read on...
